

Dear Santa,

All I want for Christmas is five minutes of free access to the feed room! I have been told this wish will not be granted so I have some alternative requests. Scarlet, Coco, and myself are the herd's senior staff. We know how our program works, backwards and forwards, so I am writing on behalf of all three of us. In lessons, some of our students don't like the feel of our rubber dot-grip reins and are reluctant to hold them. If you would kindly bring us some alternative colored reins it would be a great help to our riders. And we can also use a few new rubber rainbow reins, some have gotten old and sticky. We're also trying to replace all of our old peacock style stirrup irons with rubber sided irons, which reduce the chance of a rider's foot getting trapped in the stirrup. To get all saddles equipped with these safe stirrup irons, we would love some in various sizes.

Many of my work sessions involve tiny humans. Tiny humans require tiny saddles! Would you be so kind as to bring us a Wintec children's saddle for our littlest clients?

Lastly, we could really use a nice screwdriver tool kit. I and some of my friends (not naming names!) regard the paddock fences and gates as challenges to overcome and obtain some free range time around the farm. Our servants are begging for the materials they need to fix the results of our efforts. Would you bring them some tools they need to mend fences and the other stuff we try to destroy around the farm?

I promise I have only tortured a few teenagers this year,

IVAN
